A few days ago J. W. Heisman, director of Athletics for Georgia Tech, published in an Atlanta paper a forecast of the coming season, in which he gave Auburn the Championship of the S. I. A.

Heisman Likes the Auburn Game A. Of course we hope that he has some inside information, but we are also keeping the powder dry. It was interesting to see him approve the Auburn style of play. He said that Auburn was the only Southern college, whose style of game was sufficiently individual and consistent from year to year to be recognized as characteristic. In describing the Auburn game he identified it as the co-operative, steady, plunging style, consisting of line bucks and short end-runs through the tips of the line of scrimmage rather than wide end-runs and forward passes. Many of our supporters were disappointed last year that our game was not more open. To them it seemed too near the old style of pull and plunge. It was certainly not as spectacular as that of many of our opponents. Donahue defended himself by saying that the radical forms of open play were too dangerous to be used except in an extremity. If Auburn could not have won by the less spectacular plays, she would have used others; but when she held the upper hand it would have been folly to have risked a forward pass for the purpose of running up the score. In the article mentioned above Heisman takes the same point of view, notwithstanding his leaning toward an open game and radical plays. It is very likely that Auburn's game will be conservative again this year.

The campaign for a new gymnasium is now swiftly passing into the second phase. The total amount is now subscribed; it remains to collect the payments as they fall due. The phase of collection begins on October 1st, when almost one-third of the total amount should be placed to the credit of our new gymnasium. Subscribers to the fund should send in their October installments promptly, remembering that the greater the expense of notices and letters the smaller will be the final fund. If readers of the Alumnus will send their first payments in promptly and urge their friends to do this also, the cost of collecting will be reduced to a minimum. Let us hasten to build this home for Auburn athletics, the first substantial gift to the college by its loyal sons. Already several hundred dollars has been received.

Subscriptions

We should like to send every issue of the Alumnus to every Auburn man, and we believe that we have a magazine that is worth more than its cost to every man that ever entered the main building as a student. We mailed out almost two thousand copies of the last issue, and have received many letters of approval and suggestions and also a good many new subscriptions. May we urge our readers to help us in getting the desired number of subscribers, 2000? If only about one of every four of former Auburn students were to join hands with us, we would have more than two thousand. If every subscriber would set himself the task of getting another subscriber we would have nearly the requisite number. Dr. John Rush, of Mobile, writes that he hopes to persuade every member of the Auburn Alumni Association of Mobile, of which he is president, to subscribe for the Alumnus. Let every city and town Auburn club try the same thing and we will get results.

Our Alumni Paper

Mr. J. B. Lovelace, a last year's post-graduate and manager of the football team, has become assistant business manager for this session. It will be the chief part of his work to place the Alumnus on a better financial footing. Let us all help him and we will have a paper of which we can rightly be proud. Will you undertake to get one more new subscriber in the next few days?

Now is the time for Auburn men in the North to impress sporting editors of the value of Auburn football news.

Last year apparently very little information about the football season in the Auburn News in the Big Dailies South found its way into the "big" dailies of the North, East, and Middle West. The Alumnus will be glad to wire scores and write-ups of any desired length of games every Saturday to those papers who want the news. Every man interested should write a letter to the sporting editors in his city and the correspondents of the Associated Press and similar news companies. Now's the time to show the strength of the demand for Auburn football news in distant cities.

The opening this year surpassed all expectations so far as attendance is concerned. The statistics usually distributed at this season are not ready as we go to press, but the indications are that this will be another record year.

Splendid Opening
The Auburn student body had aimed to bring in 1000 boys for the year 1914-15 and their plans would have been almost realized if our friends across the water had not disturbed the peace. If you would like to see Auburn teaching 2000 students sometime in the next decade, keep your eye on the boys in your neighborhood who ought to go to college. Key them up to catch the Auburn message.

We are printing in this number a statement of the policy of the Pennsylvania State College outlined by President Sparks. In many ways it is a wise, progressive policy.

The College Policy.
In many ways it is identical with the Auburn policy. Let the alumni who read this ask themselves how it agrees with or differs from the Auburn policy as they conceive of it. The Auburn spirit has been written and talked about a good deal. Can you define it? We shall be glad to print a few comments by alumni on this vital point.

A PENN STATE POLICY OUTLINED BY PRESIDENT SPARKS.

After an experience of five years in The Pennsylvania State College, I venture to formulate a policy for the future. It should be the aim of the institution:

1. Not to aspire to the much-abused title of "University," since professional and graduate schools are not feasible owing to location, but to aspire to be the most thorough, and, perhaps, largest college in the United States.

2. To cultivate the family feeling of unity among students and faculty so readily fostered by the isolated location; to make mutual helpfulness the keynote of college spirit.

3. To take advantage of the isolation to work out the relation of mind-making to character-making; to devise further means of developing fixed habits for life during a four years' association and while pursuing a course of study for material purposes.

4. To modify and adjust the courses of study to the shifting demands of public life and occupation; at the same time not to lose sight of the cultural and the higher ideals of life.

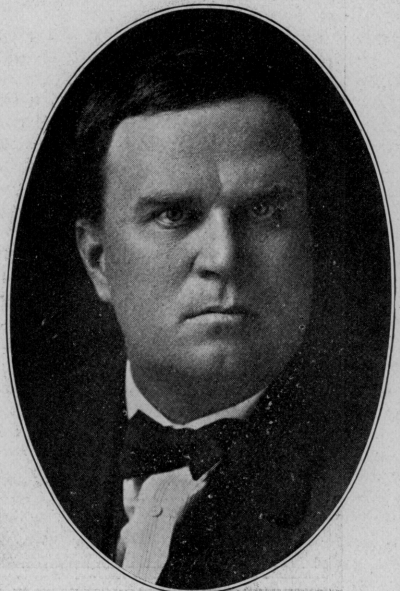

5. To hold fast to fixed courses of study for undergraduate work; with set tasks for preparation, daily recitation and regular habits of work.

6. To search for every channel of usefulness to the people of Pennsylvania; to benefit in some way every tax-payer of the state; and to make the college the vital center of radiation for the information and resulting progress of the Commonwealth.

7. To bind together all persons who have at any time attended the college into a brotherhood of devotion to the institution, a jealous zeal for her good name and a realization that her reputation is simply a reflection of theirs.

8. To use every effort to foster state pride in the college and not to be content until a permanent means of income is provided by the state.

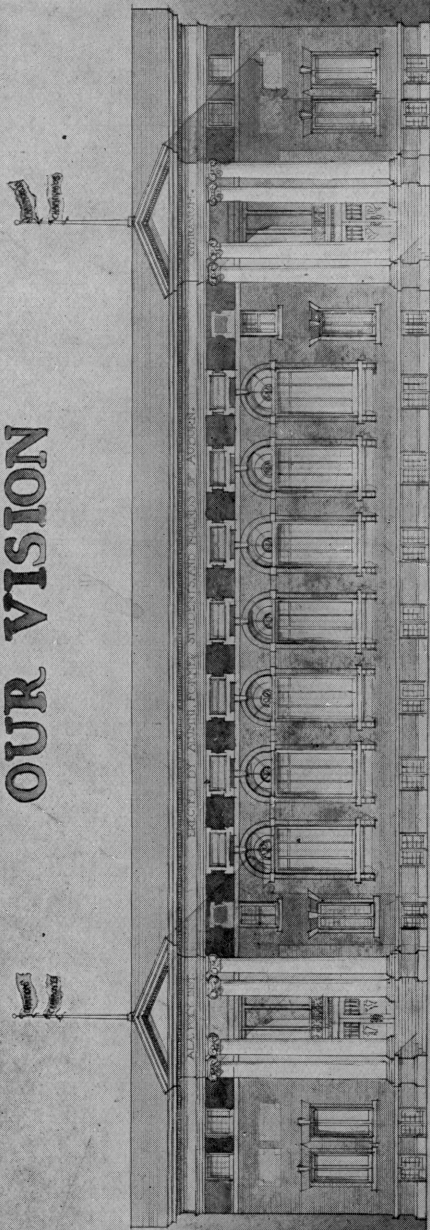

10. To continue the policy of uniform support for all schools and departments of the college, taking into consideration the number of students and consequent needs.

OUR VISION

AUBURN'S 1914 GYMNASIUM • ERECTED BY ALUMNI, FORMER STUDENTS AND FRIENDS.

NOW A REALITY.

Above we present the preliminary design of Auburn's new gymnasium, which shall bear the inscription "Erected by Alumni, Former Students and Friends," and which shall stand as an everlasting monument to the "good spirit" which animates every splendid Auburn man. The Alumni are probably aware of the fact, through press announcements that the total of $50,000.00 has already been subscribed and that work will begin immediately on the erection of this modern gymnasium. The first payments on the notes are due October 1st, and as the money is received the work will be pushed forward. Some arrangement will be made by which money can be borrowed on the subscriptions not yet due, with the notes of the subscribers as security, so that the building can be rushed to an early completion.

HOBDY RECEIVES PROMOTION.

Becomes Rural School Agent For the State.

Prof. J. B. Hobdy, '97, who for the past three years has been Assistant Professor of the School Extension work at Auburn, has been appointed State Rural School Agent by W. F. Feagin, '92, State Superintendent of Education, to succeed Prof. N. R. Baker.

Prof. Baker resigned to accept the position of assistant County Superintendent of Education of Jefferson County, which comes in the nature of a promotion. Since his appointment in 1911, by H. J. Willingham, at that time State Superintendent of Education, he has done much excellent work for the rural schools of the State.

Prof. Hobdy, who succeeds to this important work, is one of the best known educational workers in the State. He began his career as a member of the faculty of the Seventh District Agricultural School of Albertville, of which W. F. Feagin was at that time president. He served in this position from 1897 to 1901, when he succeeded to the presidency of the institution, made vacant through the resignation of Mr. Feagin, who became connected with the Department of Education.

For ten years Prof. Hobdy served as president of the Albertville school, when he resigned to accept a position in the Auburn faculty. Since 1911 he has been associated with Prof. L. N. Duncan in the Boys' Corn Club work in Alabama. He has also served as high school inspector.

This promotion will necessitate Prof. Hobdy's removal to Montgomery where he can be in close touch with his work. Auburn society will keenly feel the loss of Mr. and Mrs. Hobdy, who were important factors in the social life of the college city.

KERLIN SUCCEEDS HOBDY.

The Alumni of Auburn will be interested in the promotion of I. B. Kerlin, an Auburn man, to succeed J. B. Hobdy, the following account of which is taken from the Mobile Register:

"I. B. Kerlin, of Auburn, has been appointed assistant state agent of boys' corn clubs as the successor of J. B. Hobdy, who resigned to become state rural agent of white schools. The appointment was announced by L. N. Duncan, State Agent, in Montgomery tonight. Mr. Hobdy's successor as State School Inspector will be selected by the State Superintendent and the Alabama Polytechnic Institute later.

Mr. Kerlin has been an assistant in the corn club work for two years and before becoming interested in agricultural work was a public school teacher for four years. He was reared in Tallapoosa county and later leaving the public school was graduated from the agricultural school at Camp Hill and the state normal school at Jacksonville."

FORD SUCCEEDS JONES.

J. C. Ford, class of '12, of Tuskegee, has been appointed state agent in pig club work by Prof. L. N. Duncan to succeed Mr. Jones who resigned this summer to accept a position in Kansas. Mr. Ford was a farm demonstration agent in Macon county. He was graduated in agriculture from the district agricultural school at Hamilton and has a degree in agriculture and live stock management from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Mr. Ford spent two years in agricultural work in Rome, Ga., before moving to Alabama.

Roy House—Honor Representative.

H. M. Ware and R. H. Thach, Sophomore Representatives Orange and Blue Board.

FOOTBALL MANAGER.

Gus Graydon, '14, was elected by the student body last spring to manage the football team this year. Graydon was voted the most popular boy in college last year and has been the recipient of numerous honors, from the student body. He is proving to be an excellent choice and all indications point to another successful season.

Y. M. C. A.

The records in the office of General Secretary S. J. Smith, of the Auburn Y. M. C. A. point to a large membership, and this important branch of College life will doubtless enjoy a most successful year.

In order to increase the membership to at least five hundred, two teams of canvassers have been organized, John Pitts captaining one team and Pete Lester the other. The winning team is to be given a banquet at the Clement, in Opelika and judging from the zest already displayed, the "big eaters" must be pretty well divided.

The students reception and get-together meeting was held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and proved a great success. Over five hundred were present and everyone seemed to enjoy the informality of the occasion, which is typical of the true democratic spirit that prevails in Auburn. Delicious punch served by the ladies, and impromptu amusement by the band and individuals, served to make the occasion the more enjoyable.

SEASON TICKETS.

The system inaugurated last year, in which a student on entering college deposits a small additional athletic fee and is admitted free to all athletic events on the campus, proved very successful and will be a permanent feature. This permits the entire student body to participate in all sports and has proven a great help in promoting better college spirit.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS.

Once more it is the season of the great College game and already over sixty candidates have reported for the preliminary practice under the direction of Coach Donahue, who is ably assisted by alumni coaches, Penton, Tichenor and Steadham.

The alumni of Auburn are in the habit of expecting great things of the Auburn football team, and Coach Donahue has usually turned out a team that exceeded every expectation, and always he has turned out a team that is noted for the fair and gritty spirit with which it meets any opponent.

At this writing it is only possible to take a birdseye view of the situation and discuss the prospects from what we know we have and what we reasonably expect of last year's scrubs and classmen.

As a whole the prospects are very good, but unless Thigpen returns Auburn's chances of "cleaning up" as they did last season will to a great extent depend on the development of last year's scrub linemen.

With the return of Arnold the backfield is considerably strengthened, as his previous experience should put him in position to run the team in great shape. Harris and Bidez are known assets, and Hart too should be very valuable unless hindered from playing by injuries. Taylor and Prendergast should profit by last year's experience and will be counted on pretty strong. Hairston is a sure comer and will probably be used to relieve Arnold at half back. The ends should cause no worry as, with Robinson back at the right wing and Kearley on the other extremity, no team can boast a better pair. Kearley will furnish additional reserve strength to the back field and will probably be relieved at end at times by Taylor with Monk as another possibility for this position.

Pitts is back at center and he should be better even than last year. Steed will be a good man to relieve Pitts and will fit in nicely at odd times as a guard or tackle. The problem that Coach Donahue has to solve then is to develop three or four good tackles to take the places of Esslinger and Wynne, both regulars of last season who did not return. Louisell is back and will be an excellent man at one of the tackles. His mate will in all probability be Culpepper or Martin. Other likely looking men are Sample and young Thigpen. The greatest worry will be over the guards unless Thigpen returns as Lockwood is lost through graduation. Thigpen's failure to return will mean that both of these positions will go to inexperienced men. However there is some likely looking material in Howe, Echols, Fricke and Martin.

As a whole the prospects are for a good, even-balanced team which should be capable of giving any team a good scrap. However, any team that loses three all-Southern men and two others that came near making it, has a big hole to fill and on how well the material develops will depend the outcome.

The new men, who according to this year's rule are inelligible, have been organized as "outlaws" and are proving apt pupils under the tutelage of "War-horse" Penton. They present a nice array of talent, but will help this seasons prospects only in the role of developers for the Varsity.

The schedule, which varies very little from last year, except that the season is opened a week earlier, follows:

- Sept. 26, Marion Institute in Auburn.
- Oct. 3, Jacksonville Normal College in Auburn.
- Oct. 10, University of Florida in Jacksonville, Fla.
- Oct. 17, Clemson in Auburn.
- Oct. 24, Mississippi A. & M., in Birmingham.
- Nov. 7, Gorgia Tech in Atlanta.
- Nov. 14, Vanderbilt in Birmingham.
- Nov. 21, Georgia in Atlanta.
- Dec. 2, Carlisle in Atlanta.

The Athletic Association has spared no expense this year in getting men to assist Coach Donahue in turning out another Championship team.

Tick Tichenor, '96, famous for pulling the "hidden ball" trick, who though a veteran of the old school, is thoroughly conversant with the modern game, has charge of the scrubs.

"War-horse" Penton, ex-'09, who assisted with last year's squad, has returned and has been given the important task of developing the men who are inelligible for this years team but who will make next year's candidates hustle some.

John B. Steadham, ex-'10, has charge of the "grass cutters," and will try and develop some future stars.

These men are all loyal alumni of Auburn and should be of great help to Coach Donahue, to whom all Auburn men are looking for another rattling good team.

DR. J. O. RUSH
President of Mobile Alumni Club.

Personals

Dr. John Osgood Rush, '99, was recently elected Honorary Member of the Italian Physico-chemical Academy and was given a first-class medal for "technical work and scientific merit." Another signal honor came from Germany in the form of an invitation to the First International Congress of Sexual Researches which was planned for Nov. 4, 1914. He was urged to undertake a lecture before the Congress and especially to give a report.

Dr. Rush, after graduating from the Medical Department of the University of Alabama, held many positions of trust in connection with hospitals and schools of medicine. He has done post-graduate work in the University of Pennsylvania and in New York and Philadelphia hospitals.

He is now practicing Genito-Urinary

Surgery in Mobile, and is associate Professor in his specialty in the Medical Department of the University of Alabama, and is the author of numerous original scientific papers.

Several months ago he delivered a talk on "Sexual Hygiene" to the students at Auburn. He is President of the Auburn Alumni Club of Mobile, and a most enthusiastic Auburn man.

J. H. Phillips, '10, has charge of the Duroc Jersey herd of McKee Brothers at Versailles, Ky. The herd is famous as being headed by the "Defender," twice champion at international shows.

W. T. Clearman, '13, is teaching manual training and agriculture in the Escambia County High School, Atmore, Ala.

W. L. White, '14, is assistant in the library at Auburn this year.

J. B. Lovelace, '13, student manager of the 1913 football team, has been chosen assistant business manager of The Alumnus for the coming year.

W. M. Sellers, '14, has been chosen agriculturist and farm superintendent of the Agricultural High School at Perkinston, Miss.

W. H. Lanford, ex-'12, is engaged in engineering work in Mobile county.

G. D. Noble, ex-'08, is assistant in the Supreme Court Library at the Capitol, Montgomery, Ala.

Earl Lay, a popular member of the class of '98, is the hustling secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Gadsden, Ala.

A. B. Bellinger, '01, is a prominent merchant at Eufaula, Ala.

Dr. M. J. Bancroft, '96, a prominent physician in Mobile, is on the medical faculty of the University of Alabama.

Morris Blake, ex-'06, is in the hardware business at Selma, Ala.

Julian S. Chambers, '04, is a promising young attorney of Atlanta, Ga.

O. D. Dumas, '96, is a prominent member of the firm, Dumas Grocery Co., wholesale grocers of Mobile, Ala.

John E. Davis, '11, one of the greatest athletes ever developed at Auburn, is connected with W. C. Weston, architect, Birmingham, Ala.

James B. Ellis, class of '80, one of the most prominent business and insurance men in the state, makes Selma his headquarters.

J. M. Moseley, '12, is head prescription clerk for the Brannon Pharmacy, Brewton, Ala.

Harry H. Rabb, ex-'13, has entered the Law Department of the University of Alabama.

Walter P. Christian, '13, is working in the Meter Department of the Birmingham Railway, Light and Power Co.
